75c. Silks, 29c.

A sale unequalled in the history of the dry-goods trade.

NOTE.—Owing to the extreme stringency of the money market we were able to secure from an importer, for spot cash, his entire stock of about 30,000 yards unused India Silks in all this season's styles. They are in new patterns, some on black and colored grounds; have never been sold for less than 60c. to 75c.; we offer the entire lot at 29c. yard.

We cannot give samples from this lot, nor can we fill mail orders. An early personal selection will secure an excellent choice.

THE FOURTH PRESBYTERIAN AT WEST END-AVE.

AND NINETY-FIRST-ST.

The ceremonies attending the laying of the cornerstone of the new Fourth Presbyterian Church at West End-ave. and Ninety-first-st. were held yesterday afternoon. After the opening sentence had been pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Kerr, who will be the pastor of the new church, the hymn, "O Jesus, Our Chief Cornerstone," was sung. Then followed the invocation by the Rev. Dr. Horace L. Singleton, and the long metre doxology. The historical sketch of the church was read by John H. Allen, and the Holy Scriptures by the Rev. Dr. David G. Wyllie. The Rev. Dr. John Baldwin Shaw delivered the address, and then the cornerstone was placed in position by Dr. Kerr.

The cornerstone was covered with flowers, and the guiding ropes, also hidden with flowers, were held by the little Misses Anna and Marge Barkley and Frederick Kerr and John McDonald. In the cornerstone in addition to the things usually placed therein, were a number of articles commemorating the World's Fair. The prayer of dedication and thanksgiving was said by the Rev. Dr. Asaph A. Atterbury.

Among those who attended the ceremonies were Mrs. J. H. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. Blume, Mr. and Mrs. Kydd, Mr. and Mrs. McLeckin, Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin, James R. Cushing, Francis Pringle, James A. Craig, Mrs. McCullagh, Mr. and Mrs. Hammill, Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Bartley, Thomas Cochran, William Allan, J. H. Hume, C. H. Smith, Hugo Cheyne, the Rev. Dr. Andrew Shiland, and the Rev. Dr. Harsham.

The Fourth Presbyterian Church was organized in 1787, and its building first stood in Nassau-st., near Fulton. It afterward moved to Mercer and Grand sts., then to Crosby and Grand sts., and later to Thirty-fourth-st., near Broadway, where it now is. The new church will cost about $150,000 and the total cost $200,000. The architecture is a mixture of Norman and Gothic. The tower, with a typical Norman tower, battlemented and surmounted by a slender spire, Gray Indiana limestone will be used for the facing.

THE "BLACK PATTI" TO SING FOR MAJOR POND.

At the hearing before Judge McAdam in the Superior Court yesterday, on the order to show cause why an injunction should not be issued restraining singer Joe Jones, the "Black Patti," from singing under other management than that of Major J. B. Pond, who has a three-year contract with her, and more restraining her from making or filing any more contracts, to the application of ex-Judge Dittenhofer and W. C. Becker, counsel for Major Pond. The money received by her from her contractors already made was ordered to be paid over to the defendant's counsel subject to the order of the Court. The case will come up again next Saturday morning.

THE DORE GALLERY TO BE EXHIBITED AGAIN.

A force of mechanics has recently been employed making alterations in the Armory Building, at Broadway and Seventh-ave., between Fifty-second and Fifty-third sts. The object is to fit the building for the Dore collection of paintings, which for twenty-two years was exhibited in London. These paintings were on exhibition for a time at the Carnegie Music Hall, where for want of space they were seen at great disadvantage. It was the intention of the management at the close of the exhibition to send the collection to Chicago, but upon deliberation they decided to open a permanent Dore Gallery in New-York if good working order. The death watch has been put on the collection to-morrow.
